Gathering in the pot with his left hand, he held the pistol with his right and inquired if any of the players had any objections to offer. They hastened to reply that they had no objections whatever and we went away from there. Bill, I said, when we were well outside the place, I had been noticing that fellow s play right along, but I thought you hadn t. I was going to get into the game myself if he beat you out of that money. Billy, replied Hickock, I don t want you ever to learn it, but that is one of my favorite poker tricks. It always wins against crooked players....
