Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 160 pages. Transferring from one law school to another is like painting a delicate and complicated panorama, moving from one scene (your current law school) to a new one (the law school of your dreams). There are the technical elements, sure: certain methods and steps must be done at certain, specific times, and in certain ways. Failing to follow these can make your colors sag and smear, destroying all that youve done to that point. In law school, thats a lifetime of academic preparation. As with all works of art, of course, theres an artistic element as well. So, its not enough to simply submit papers and files on time. What is done must be done so that its pleasing to those who see it: the admissions committee. (Or for transfers, often just one person: the dean of admissions.) Like all former transfer students, we painted our canvases. And as with nearly all novices, we made mistakes. These mistakes cost us time, money, and maybe even acceptance possibilities. The transfer process is full of quirks that a novice--any novice--will not see coming. With this book you will be prepared, and you will prepare your own work of art. After years of effort and sacrifice, dont ruin your portrait with needless errors. Instead, create the masterpiece that will get you into the law school of your dreams. Competition for admission to law school is intense, with many if not most students hoping to gain admission to a dream law school. Many of these students then hope to transfer to that dream school. The intensity of the law school experience--along with the exclusivity of top law jobs--feeds a desire among many law students to transfer up to their dream school. This book is a guide for...
