The proceeds of this research in the organizational behavior area have been very fruitful. In the early years, when suitable research measurement instruments and theoretically sound priors were almost non-existent, advancement of knowledge was due largely to experimental work, such as that of Bavelas and his associates (see Bavelas, [1950], for example). In the late 1950s, however, significant advances in the leadership measurement area were made, due to the developmental work of the Ohio State Leadership group, in particular Stogdill and Coons, which led to the well-known Leadership Behavior Description Questionnaire (LBDQ). Two dimensions of this taxonomy, Consideration and Initiation of Structure have since been the focus of countless empirical studies of the impact of leadership style. Today, we are armed with a relatively well articulated contingency theory of leadership style, in the sense that many replicated results point to clear situations in which various leadership styles will be more effective than others. In the management accounting literature though, specifically the area of budget system design, some exploration of appropriate leadership style has begun, but our knowledge is still rudimentary.
