Charlie McCain lives on his grandpa's farm with a religious and superstitious mama, who believes in ghosts; and tattling little sister, Lucy. Grandpa, who lives next door, is understanding and kind. Charlie likes to hunt and fish with Rocky, his best friend and neighbor. When Charlie finds a beautiful stray Lab with eight puppies in the barn, he is afraid to tell his mama, because she does not like dogs. She, somehow, associates dogs with the BB gun that blinded her in one eye as a child. After Lucy tattles about the Lab, Charlie convinces his mama to let him keep one puppy. Daisy is beautiful, smart and a prize hunting dog. The Adventures of Charlie, Rocky, and Daisy carry readers across the South Georgia woodlands, swamp, creek, and ponds where they hunt for deer, wild hogs, doves, raccoons, and ducks. They also ride in their hand-made boat down the Ocmulgee River with the unwanted company of little sister, Lucy, to catch the prize fish of their dreams; but their catch is not worth the trouble...
