Harper Wolfe never intended to return for an extended period to his place of birth in Kellersville, Alabama. Now a successful mystery writer, he lives in California, where he moved after divorcing his childhood sweetheart, Nan. When he finds out that Nan is dying, he returns home to be with her and to reconnect with their teenage son, PK. Because he will eventually have full custody of PK and plans to relocate the teenager to Palm Springs, he faces several important hurdles. Harper and PK have spent a month together each summer, but neither Harper nor Nan has told their son that Harper is gay. Their time together has been wonderful, but in reality they don't know each other well, because PK was only nine years old when Nan and Harper separated. In addition, living in the house with Hank, Nan's second husband presents a slight awkwardness because Harper has harbored a secret crush on him since the three of them taught at the local high school. Another significant challenge for Harper is dealing with his...
